(PR Firm)
April 7th

"The tragic crime to Michelle Wilkins has been trending around the world via the traditional (print, broadcast) and new media (web and social) plus online bloggers have been posting stories and comments nearly around the clock.

As a result of this heavy media activity and numerous requests for interviews with Michelle and/or members of the family, by local, regional, national and international media, it made sense for the family to reach out to a Colorado-based firm that has experience handling intense press interest for victims.

Our role is to serve as a conduit between the family and the various media following Michelle's story going forward."
